Green light for £2 million children and family centre

Work has started on a £2 million investment project which will provide a new state of the art facility for children and families in Harrow Green.

The centre is scheduled to open its doors in late 2018, in Leytonstone High Road.

The Council's Adult Learning and Children & Family services will be based in the new premises, alongside the Harrow Green community library.

Residents will be able to access a broad range of training courses and apprenticeships to help them back into work or get a better job.

NHS partners, the North East London Foundation Trust (NELFT) will deliver health checks and health clinics, while HENRY, a programme to ensure that children get the best start in life, will continue to offer programmes supporting breastfeeding, healthy eating, dental hygiene, and speech and language provision.

Leader of Waltham Forest Council, Clare Coghill, said: "I'm determined to give everyone in this borough the best possible chance in life. This new children & family centre will provide vital services to support families with babies and children up to four years old.

"Support shouldn't end when our children leave school. This centre will also offer adult education courses to help everyone adapt to the rapidly changing world of work.

"I'm delighted we are now on site and look forward to opening this important hub for Leytonstone and the whole borough."

The Children and Family Centre universal support is offered via The Lloyd Park Children's Charity and will provide a wide range of care and activities for 0-4 year olds, encouraging learning and development through play.

The Early Help team, also based at Harrow Green, will provide targeted support to vulnerable families and Harrow Green community library will offer a broad range of reading materials, reading clubs and activities throughout the year.

The new centre will be easily accessible by public transport. Parking at the centre will be available for disabled residents and on-street parking permits will be available for purchase.

Government changes to benefits

If you are in receipt of benefits to help with your living or housing costs, you may be affected by changes to the way you claim. Six current benefits will be replaced by Universal Credit, a national government benefit available from the Department for Work and Pensions. Universal Credit replaces:

- Housing Benefit
- Child Tax Credit
- Income Support
- income-based Jobseekers' Allowance (JSA),
- income-related Employment and Support Allowance (ESA)
- Working Tax Credit

These are now referred to as 'legacy' benefits. Not every legacy benefit claimant in the borough will transfer to Universal Credit straight away. You will only need to apply if your circumstances change, for example if you are starting a job. The change will happen in stages across the borough, depending on where you live. You can check when your postcode area is affected on the council's website. However, you will need to apply promptly as backdated payments for the new benefit will be limited. Applications should be made directly to the DWP online.

If your circumstances don't change, you will not be affected until 2019 at the earliest.

If you are liable for Council Tax and need help to make the payments or you are already receiving assistance in the form of Council Tax Support you will still claim this direct from the Council.

The Council has partnered with Citizen's Advice to provide free support with completing your online application, personal budgeting workshops and one-to-one appointments.

Free internet access is available at all Waltham Forest libraries.

Tips for making an application for Universal Credit

1. Use the DWP online calculator to work out your personal financial position.
2. Plan your finances to make sure that you pay your rent, council tax and other bills on time.
3. Book a free personal budgeting appointment with Citizens Advice – 0300 330 1175.
4. Make sure that you have a bank account so you can receive your Universal Credit payments.
5. If you don't have a computer you can use one at your local library. All Waltham Forest libraries offer free internet access.

New data rules apply

UK laws around data protection are changing on Friday 25 May. The changes, known as General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) aim to give you more control over your data and who has access to it. But what does it mean for you and the council?

If you currently use council My Account services – to pay your council tax, for example – you'll see no change. Service emails are not affected under GDPR and you'll continue to receive them as usual. However, if you receive any other emails from the council, such as e-newsletters, you'll need to confirm that you are still happy to receive them. We'll make it easy for you by sending you an email asking if you'd like to continue getting them direct to your inbox. You'll need to click Yes to make sure you opt-in. Alternatively, if you'd prefer to stop receiving mails, do nothing and you'll be automatically unsubscribed from Friday 25 May. You can also manually unsubscribe from our mailing lists at any time – each email will have an Unsubscribe link, usually at the bottom, which you can use to remove yourself. Staying on our mailing lists will mean you never miss a great event, show or activity in Waltham Forest and you'll always have the latest information about what's happening in your borough. We'd love to stay in touch – but the choice is yours!

From the Leader

Cllr Clare Coghill

I'd like to start by saying thank you to all the people who played a part in the recent local elections. From those knocking on doors across the borough from all political parties to council staff ensuring a smooth and professional count – we finished our count first of anywhere in London! I would also like to give praise to the seventy thousand people in Waltham Forest who chose to vote and have their say on who represents them. A lot of work goes in by people across our fantastic borough to ensure that our democracy works and that our residents' voices are heard.

It is a huge honour to be voted in to represent the people of Waltham Forest. I am energised about the coming years and the improvements we can make to the lives of people from all sections of our community.

Knocking on doors and attending public meetings also gave me the opportunity to speak to people across the borough and listen to their views. From concerns about knife crime, worries over education funding to the ability of young people to get onto the housing ladder, what struck me is the unifying concern about our young people's future. This is why I commissioned Conor Ryan, a former Government advisor on education, to chair a Life Chances Commission in Waltham Forest, looking in detail at the obstacles our young people face in achieving their potential.

The Commission will make recommendations about how to improve our residents' life chances, which will shape the work of Waltham Forest Council and its partners for years to come. I believe that our fundamental role at Waltham Forest Council is to help improve our residents' life chances. The success of this work will be measured by the future achievements of all our young people. I will be updating you in the coming weeks and months about the findings of the study and what this will mean for services in Waltham Forest.

“I’m proud to help these young men become positive members of society”

‘Foster Care Fortnight’ which runs from 14 May to 27 May, is an excellent opportunity to showcase the difference that foster care makes to the lives of fostered children and young people.

But foster care doesn’t just transform the lives of the young people who are fostered; it also has the power to change the lives of foster carers, their families and everyone involved.

Marie and her husband Arthur are Waltham Forest specialist foster carers. They have cared for Brian for three years and Dennis for just over a year. Both boys have complex needs. Marie shared why she is proud to foster.

“I am proud to be part of a team of amazing individuals who work hard to help the young men in our care to become positive members of society. They have many obstacles to overcome and due to their different diagnoses find working with others difficult.

“One of my proudest moments was when Brian had his immunisations. It had taken lots of discussion, over two years, Arthur and I having injections so he could see there was nothing to fear and many bouts of behaviour before he bounced out of the doctors surgery with a big grin on his face! “Dennis too overcame his move from a small educational setting to a mainstream 1000+ secondary school. Understandably this was a huge transition for him. He did refuse to go school in the early days, but now because of the right behavioural support at home Dennis attends regularly. I feel privileged and proud to have seen the small steps they have made and continue to hope and pray they begin to trust the process.”

If you wish to find out more about fostering please come along to our Fostering Information Session on Tuesday 15 May, 6.30pm at Waltham Forest Town Hall with guest speaker David Akinsanya, a broadcaster, journalist and motivational speaker who grew up in care.

Alternatively, during week commencing 21 May 2018, why not come and meet our fostering team as well as existing Foster Carers during our information bus tour.

Time to get on the move – walk, cycle, enjoy

May is National Walking Month and we are encouraging residents to get involved in a national walking challenge to step out for 20 minutes a day.

A leisurely stroll on a sunny evening or a fast walk to work can help improve a person’s mood, energy levels, self-esteem and quality of sleep. It can also help walkers lose weight and help prevent chronic conditions like diabetes and heart disease.

Research by Transport for London has found that a more than third of car journeys in London could be walked in less than 25 minutes and switching from vehicle to foot helps to improve air quality for everyone in the borough.

Some ideas to get you started are to go for a walk with a friend instead of a coffee, or join in one of the group walks taking place in our parks, see the table below.

Now is the time to sign up for Le Tour de Waltham Forest

Now is also the time to sign up for the council’s annual community cycling event, Le Tour de Waltham Forest.

This year’s event takes place on Sunday 24 June, and you can choose a leisurely 7.5km route, a more challenging 12km option or an adventurous 18km route. All of which will take in the beautiful nature spots of the Leyton marshes, the Walthamstow Wetlands, Lee Valley as well as some of the quiet residential streets of Walthamstow.

In recent years the council has invested in improving the borough’s streets to make it easier and safer for cyclists to get around. There is now more than 22km of segregated and semi-segregated cycle lanes on the borough’s main roads and more pedestrianised or partially closed roads in residential and shopping areas.

If you don’t have your own two wheeler, don’t forget you can also hire an Urbo bike, a 30 minute ride is just 50p or the council also hires bikes, including cargo bikes, to residents for free.

Going above and beyond to keep our streets clean and green

We know that clean streets are really important to you and we're going above and beyond to tackle neighbourhood issues including fly-tipping and littering

LONDON BOROUGH OF WALTHAM FOREST

MY STREET

We caught up with Tibor, one of our graffiti cleaners, as he carried out his work to keep our borough clean.

Hi Tibor, how long have you worked for the Council?

"I've worked for Waltham Forest for ten years, previously I was a mechanical sweeper operator, but I've been part of the graffiti team for the last seven months.

I'm part of a team of four graffiti cleaners – we travel around the borough jet washing and painting over ugly scrawls to keep Waltham Forest looking clean."

How do you find out about spots that have been hit with graffiti?

"I drive around every morning looking in the places that I've seen graffiti before to see if there's anything new and I try to remove it straight away. I also get jobs sent through which residents have reported to the council. You can quickly report graffiti to us."

www.walthamforest.gov.uk/report

Do you get a sense of satisfaction seeing graffiti covered up?

"Definitely, it looks much nicer and I can see the difference of my work straight away. That's what keeps me motivated, when I paint over graffiti as I have today or by removing it from walls with the jet wash."

Do residents ever comment on your work?

"Yes, it happens quite often, if they see me removing some graffiti I get a lot of positive feedback from them. That's the other thing that keeps me motivated."

What do you like about Waltham Forest?

"I really like London, I'm happy that I moved here, and I enjoy the job as well. Waltham Forest has lots of activities you can do. I really like swimming and enjoy the leisure centres, parks and the free activities that are available for everyone."

Thanks for your hard work Tibor.

Learn, share and repair at The Repair Café

Residents can bring their faulty small electrical items, broken bicycles and ripped clothes for repair

The Repair Café reopens its doors on Saturday 19 May at St John's Church Hall (High Rd, Leytonstone, E11 1HH) between 11am and 2pm.

At the Repair Café Leytonstone, residents can bring their faulty small electrical items, broken bicycles and ripped clothes and learn how to fix them for free over tea and cake. This year we aim to make the Repair Café Leytonstone a space where residents can learn and share their repair knowledge with others. If you are passionate about fixing or upcycling then why not take part this year and share your skills with others?

Last year over 600 visitors prevented more than a tonne of items from being wasted by repairing them, which in turn saved around 3 tonnes of CO2. The hugely popular service has been shortlisted for two national awards: Best Community Recycling Initiative and Best Waste Reduction Initiative-Public Sector/ Third Sector.

Deputy Leader and Cabinet Member for the Environment Cllr. Clyde Loakes said: "Initiatives like the Repair Café in Leytonstone are so important in fighting unnecessary waste. Sharing repair skills is a fantastic way for everyone to be involved in repairing things we may have otherwise thrown away."

Each month, recycling charity TRAIID will be joined by different partners to make up our resident repair team, The Restart Project, Cycle Confident and Forest

Recycling Project will take turns each month fixing residents' small electrical items, bicycles and teaching DIY skills.

As Rev. David Britton of St John's Church said: "This year there are more ways to join in and develop your own repairing skills – so come along and join us and, as always, there will be a warm welcome and delicious homemade cakes on offer."

Relief for small businesses

Flexible workspaces for small businesses and start-ups, particularly those in the creative industries, are set to be exempt from paying business rates for the first 12 months and pay much lower rates for a further four years.

On Tuesday 24 April Cabinet approved a change to the Discretionary Rate Relief, creating a new category of relief targeted at open workspaces. These are defined as co-working, incubators and accelerators, as well as workshops and studios with shared common facilities. Central Parade in Walthamstow and Blackhorse Workshops are examples of co-working spaces.

Caroline Johnston from The EverySPACE in Central Parade said "This is great news for small businesses such as myself. This will have a huge impact on local people taking the plunge as a start-up. It's great that the Council have been innovative in changing this policy for the benefits of local businesses in Waltham Forest."

Co-working spaces like Central Parade are set to benefit from the rate relief policy change.

Believed to be the first relief of its kind in London, eligible open workspaces will be able to take advantage of the rate relief, making workspace more affordable for the small businesses that use them.

Businesses liable for business rates on open workspaces will be able to apply for discounted rates over a period of up to five years, beginning this financial year. The proposed offer would start with 100% relief in year one, then reduce by 15% per year until reaching 40% in year five; after which full business rates will be payable. This means workspace operators will be able to pass on discounted rents to creative start-ups and small businesses on site. This is good news for businesses but also local employment which is already at an all-time high at 81%.

Councillor Liaquat Ali, Cabinet

Member for Transformation and Commercial Operations said "The introduction of this rate relief over the next five years means affordable space and makes things much easier for local entrepreneurs."

Councillor Simon Miller, Cabinet Member for Economic Growth and High Streets said "The affordability and flexibility of co-working spaces like Central Parade and the brand new Switchboard Studios, provide perfect environments for small businesses to start and prosper."

There are some restrictions around who can apply for discounted rates and there must be a strong commitment to supporting the economic, social and cultural vitality of the borough.

Join the Adult Learning Board

The Adult Learning Board is looking for new members to help shape the services offered, review the quality of teaching and help us to understand our strengths and where we can develop further.

Adult education is vital in providing courses that enable us to learn throughout our lives such as when we need to learn new skills after redundancy or a career break.

The Council wants to use its adult education service to continue to create exciting new futures for our residents as part of our Creating Futures strategy.

Key to this is making sure we have greater resident and stakeholder say in the design and delivery of our Adult Learning Service.

You don't need to know anything about education as your experience of life and living in the borough will be enough. Full training is provided.

Waltham Forest

60 performances From the Forest

London's newest theatre festival is coming to Waltham Forest this summer. Produced by Walthamstow based Beartuza, From The Forest Theatre and Arts Festival will feature more than 60 performances across six local venues.

Artists taking part in the festival gathered to celebrate its official launch at Mirth, Marvel and Maud on Hoe St last month. Following an opening speech from festival directors Phil Poole and Laura Chetty, guests had the opportunity to meet the performers who will be a part of this brand new event. From The Forest will run from Thursday 21 June to Friday 1 July with performances at Centre17, Mirth, Marvel and Maud, Ye Olde Rose & Crown, Leyton Technical, The Birds and Orford House. The festival will celebrate some of the best that the borough has to offer, with 75 per cent of the companies involved featuring artists that live or work in Waltham Forest. These include E17 Puppet Project, Flock Theatre Ensemble, Stokes & Summers and many more. From award-winning theatre and comedy to puppetry and family shows, there will be something for everyone. Festival co-director Phil Poole said: "We wanted to create a festival that provides a platform for local and visiting performers to share their work in some of the amazing venues we have on our doorstep. The response so far has been really great and it will be so exciting for audiences to see what all these talented artists have to offer." Tickets are priced between £5 and £10 with family tickets for children's shows and double bill discount tickets also on offer. Members of the From The Forest festival team will be appearing in the performance venues over the coming weeks to talk about the festival.

Get ready for a fantastic Year of Culture

Since winning the title of the first ever Mayor's London Borough of Culture in 2019 we have been preparing to deliver a fantastic year of culture for London and Waltham Forest.

We have been busy meeting with our partners including Soho Theatre, Barbican and The Lumen Prize. These partners will help us deliver the 'wow' moments that will put our borough firmly on the map and strengthen its identity. Planned events include a laser light installation by Marshmellow Laser feast accompanied by community choirs and a 48-hour film festival in honour of Alfred Hitchcock.

We recently launched a logo design competition for our residents, students and businesses, calling for unique artwork which will feature across promotional materials and merchandising. We are currently in the process of recruiting two Apprentices who will help manage our programme.

Come along to our summer festivals to enjoy a taster of what is to come next year, and find out how to get involved in London Borough of Culture 2019. At each event you will find more information on our Arts and Community Grants, volunteering, and the Cultural Leadership Programme for Young People.

Entries for the London Borough of Culture 2019 Logo Competition close on Wednesday 16 May at 12noon. Visit wfculture19.co.uk for more updates or follow @wfculture19.

Local residents, young people and artists celebrate winning London Borough of Culture 2019 at Blackhorse Workshop in February with Justine Simmons, Deputy Mayor for Culture and the Creative Industries and Cllr Clare Coghill.

Get Together Programme announced

Waltham Forest's flagship Get Together programme is back this summer, offering five free festivals full of music, arts and entertainment for residents of all ages.

All of the Get Together events offer an array of delicious festival foods and tailor made bars serving cooling refreshments. As the excitement builds up to a year as the first ever Mayor's London Borough of Culture, expect sneak peaks and special announcements about what's to come in 2019.

Cllr Clare Coghill, Leader of the Council said: "Our events, such as Chingfest and the Walthamstow Garden Party, have already put Waltham Forest on the cultural map and demonstrate just one of the reasons why we won the Mayor's London Borough of Culture.

"We launched our bid to become the London Borough of Culture 2019 at last year's summer festivals and we will be giving a taster of our plans for our year of culture at the events this summer."

- The celebrations kick off with the colourful Leyton Carnival on Sunday 8 July. A 'Cultures of the World' themed carnival parade featuring elaborate floats and colourful costumes will wind its way through the streets to the sound of steel bands and calypso music. Watch the parade along Leyton High Road from 1pm, and enjoy tempting food stalls, funfair rides, cinema and music from Heatwave, Shakatak and more at Leyton Cricket Ground.

- Next up, on Saturday 14 and Sunday 15 July, the fifth Walthamstow Garden Party in partnership with the Barbican and Create will feature international musicians from across the globe. Performers on the Barbican Music stage include Cero39, Adrian Sherwood + Creation Rebel, Dona Onete, and Fatoumata Diawara, one of the most important voices of the new African artistic generation in recent years.

Across the weekend there will be performances from Waltham Forest community dance group MovE17. Create have teamed up with Blackhorse Workshop to deliver a workshop for local young people, providing them with practical experience of delivering cultural activity with the community. Local creative organisations will curate a 'Fellowship Island' zone, which will explore ways to create a closer connection with nature and community in the city.

- Enjoy the sights, sounds and spicy aromas of South Asia at the Waltham Forest Mela on Sunday 5 August with a showcase traditional and modern music, dance, Asian-style street theatre and a range of arts and crafts. Fashion enthusiasts from across the borough will take to the catwalk in a fusion fashion show on the day.

- On Saturday 11 August in Chingford's Ridgeway Park, Chingfest hosts another great day of free live music for all the family. There will be tributes to the best classic Soul and RnB music from around the world including Kool and the Gang tribute act Celebrate, I am Whitney, I am the Supremes and Diana Ross, and American 4 Tops, a tribute to Four Tops. The festival will feature a new Urban Dance DJ tent and photography workshops with Iain Green.

- Closing the summer season on Sunday 2 September, Leytonstone Street Fest will fill the streets of Leytonstone with delectable food and drink, live music from local bands and lots of activity for all the family.

This year's Get Together festivals will also welcome a travelling exhibition of art submitted by community members and budding artists from in and around London.

For more information on all of the festivals and to take part in the Art Road Show visit www.walthamforest.gov.uk/get-together. Entries for the Art Road Show close on Friday 1 June.

'This will keep me going till my resting days'

When he moved into sheltered accommodation after having a stroke, retired builder Steve Szatan didn't give up on life. Despite being on crutches, Steve, who is waiting to have both his knees replaced, planted a garden and orchard for all the residents at his sheltered housing block to enjoy.

Steve, who lives in Longfield House in Walthamstow, has spent the last five years cultivating the plot at the front of his sheltered flat with trees, shrubs and flowers. Meanwhile, with some help from his sons, he has laid an allotment and orchard at the rear of the property where he grows tomatoes, raspberries, blackberries and rhubarb.

Steve said: "Five years ago was when I moved here – it was just grass and they used to just cut it every six – eight weeks.

"I started doing it as soon as I moved in. I'd seen the potential. It gives me a buzz every day. I love it, every minute of it..."

"It was a mess - all these bushes all round the edges. They had got big thorns and I said 'if a kid walks into them, it could blind them'. I just ripped all those bushes out and everybody was so happy and I just kept going.

"I was a builder for 49 years, I can't sit and watch telly. I worked in rain, sleet, snow. Most of the people who live here cannot get out. But I cannot sit inside."

Currently the garden is blooming with spring flowers. Steve said: "I am hoping to put all perennials in, so they come up every year. You know daffodils, bluebells, loads of roses."

Steve is also cultivating Washingtonia cotton ferns, Phoenix palm trees, hibiscus and tulips. He is especially looking forward to some black roses he has planted. "They are not black, they are very dark purple. When the sun is out they look jet black. When I bought them the guy I got them from he said everyone will stop to look at these, especially when it is cloudy."

Regardless of disabilities, Steve Szatan has cultivated trees, shrubs and flowers for all residents at his sheltered housing to enjoy.

Steve hopes to open the space up at weekends as a community garden for local people to come in and enjoy. He is making some outdoor furniture for people to sit at using some bench ends and timber a friend brought for him.

He said: "I want to get lots of tables and chairs out here – not just any tables and chairs, they have to be antique – I want everything old world style."

Apart from a grant for £1,000 from St James Street Big Local, Steve has paid for compost, grass and plants himself. "I think this front bit has probably come to about 2 grand and maybe 5 grand at the back. And I think I have another grand to go yet maybe, but I have got over the next year to do it," he said.

"I got a loan out and I have spent 7 and half thousand pounds of my own money, which is the best money I have ever spent. It has not gone to waste and I have got no money left. If anyone hears – I could do with a bit more!"

Doing the garden has given Steve a sense of purpose and helped him grow a huge social network. He said:

"I might know at least a thousand people from doing this. Some of them bring nice plants, you know."

Despite having to get around on crutches, and having blood clots on his lungs and kidneys, Steve carried on gardening regardless. He said: "I just battled on. Really I shouldn't have done it, but I couldn't stop.

Another resident often gives him a hand. Steve said: "I will be sat down on a chair and he will bring me some compost over.

"I just can't stop doing this. This will keep me going till my resting days, you know.

Asked what his message is for other Waltham Forest residents who are thinking about spring cleaning and greening their area, Steve said: "Get on with it - there is nothing stopping them, is there? Get your shovel and your fork out straight away."

In brief

Royal wedding

Royal spectators will be able to gather and watch the royal wedding of Prince Harry and Meghan Markle on the big screen in Walthamstow Town Square this Saturday 19 May. The wedding service will be screened live from St George's Chapel in Windsor and begin at 12noon, followed by footage of the newlyweds' carriage procession around Windsor.

New spaces for start-ups

A former car park in St James Street is being transformed to provide up to 60 new workspaces for growing local businesses and start-ups. CRATE, who provide workspaces with shared communal facilities, will be holding a consultation meeting on the plans. Residents, businesses and other interested people are invited to meet the development team and comment on the proposals on Thursday 17 May, between 3pm and 8pm at The Mill, Coppermill Lane.

Consultation on Blackhorse Point

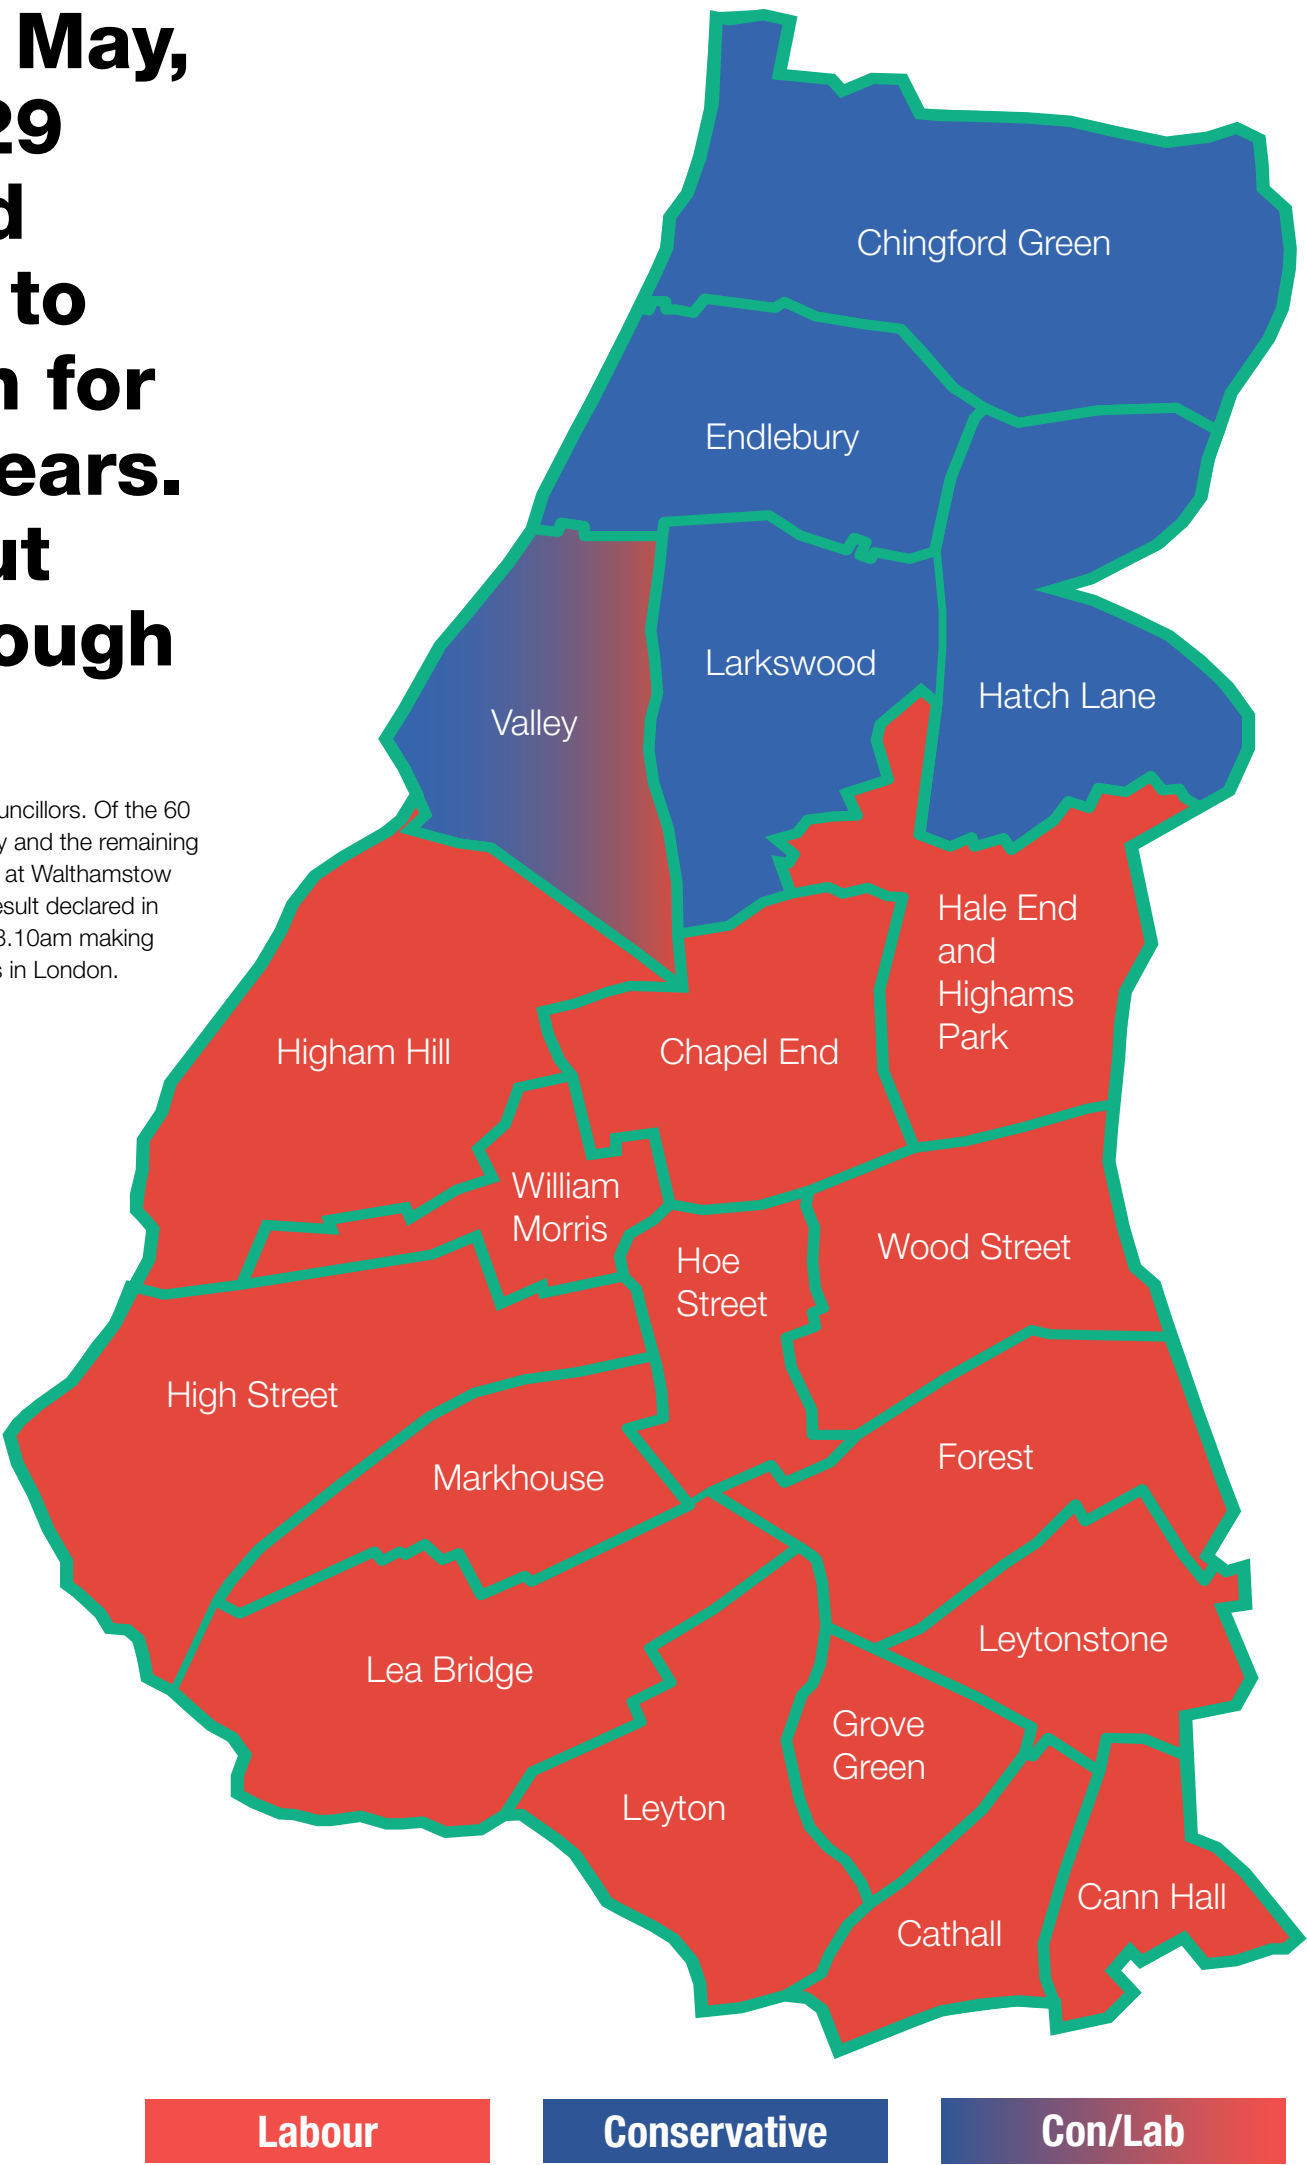

Barratt London, in partnership with Transport for London (TfL), is seeking views from local residents and businesses on the early ideas for Blackhorse Point. Plans are to transform the car park opposite Blackhorse Road underground station into a development with around 350 homes – 50 per cent of which will be affordable – as well as new creative workspaces and a mix of shops. Members of the project team will be available to discuss the proposals at The Mill, Coppermill Lane on Wednesday 16 May, 4pm to 8pm and on Saturday 19 May, 10am to 2pm.

It is also proposed that a second public consultation event will be held in the summer at Gnome House to show how the plans have evolved following feedback.

More information is available at www.blackhorsepoint.com

On Thursday 3 May, a total of 69,929 residents voted for councillors to represent them for the next four years. Average turnout across the borough was 37.75%.

Each of the 20 wards in the borough elected three councillors. Of the 60 seats contested, 14 were won by the Conservative Party and the remaining 46 were won by the Labour Party. The count took place at Walthamstow Assembly Hall and the Magistrates Court with the first result declared in Grove Green at 1.40am. All counts were completed by 3.10am making Waltham Forest the first council to declare all of its seats in London.

Dedicated campaigners awarded Freedom of Waltham Forest

Hibo Wardere and Leyla Hussein, two Walthamstow-based anti-Female Genital Mutilation (FGM) campaigners, were awarded the Freedom of the Borough at a special meeting on Thursday 19 April.

Councillors recognised their efforts campaigning against FGM, which causes huge suffering to women and girls across the world. Both Hibo and Leyla experienced FGM first-hand as they grew up in Somalia and have dedicated their time and efforts to educate people about the misery it causes so that no more young women suffer.

Hibo Wardere moved to London from her native Somalia in the 1980s. She struggled to find answers about her past and the FGM she had undergone from doctors, and it was not until she read a book on the subject that she understood what had happened to her. After writing about her experiences Hibo was invited to speak to teachers about FGM and how it might affect their pupils and she has been working as a mediator and educator ever since, helping young girls to escape from the threat of FGM.

Hibo Wardere said: "It's been great to experience the support I have had from the borough. It's good for the soul to know how I am truly supported. Being an anti-FGM activist is emotionally and physically demanding. My work is from the heart.

"Waltham Forest Town Hall was where I gave my first public talk. The support I have received has been vital in allowing me to spread my message"

Leyla Hussein also experienced FGM first-hand in her childhood. Following her pregnancy, she wanted to ensure the physical safety of her daughter and this inspired her to start campaigning to make a change on how girls globally are protected from all forms of harm.

Leyla Hussein said: "Many thanks for this amazing recognition. I'm very proud and honoured."

Leyla is the founder of anti-FGM campaign and support group Daughters of Eve and is also the Chief Executive of Hawa's Haven, a coalition of Somali women campaigners and community activists who aim to raise awareness around gender-based violence.

Cllr Clare Coghill, Leader of the Council, said: "It's been a privilege to support the work of Leyla and Hibo. Their efforts to educate people about the dangers of FGM have prevented young girls undergoing this horrific surgery and guaranteed them a safer future – and not just here, in Waltham Forest, but across the world. We're so proud to be able to award them the Freedom of the Borough of Waltham Forest, and I know residents will join us in paying tribute to these amazing ladies."
